Hospital seeking volunteers

Tauranga Hospital is seeking community-minded people interested in becoming volunteers.

Hospital spokesperson Carol Wollaston says the hospital is looking for people from all walks of life who can offer a few hours each week to do voluntary work in a number of roles, such as ward hosts, parking wardens, patient campus transport drivers, meet and greet hosts and Medical records helpers.

“People who have enthusiasm and skills to suit should come along to our volunteer information day on Saturday 28th November to find out more.”

This will be held in the Learning Centre, Hathor House, Tauranga Hospital campus from 9am.

Training will be provided for all volunteers, and key attributes are a friendly, helpful attitude and a willingness to learn. People of all ages are welcome.

“Anyone who is keen should come along to our open day on the 28th,” she says.

Please phone Lynne Perry, 579 8500 to record your interest and confirm that you will attend the open day.
